Starting over Luna Community College student left with only clothes on his back

On Saturday, March 23, Luna Community College Business and Professional Studies student Dave Martinez went out for what he thought was going to be a routine lunch with his son. Not even a half hour later, Martinez' cell phone rang. And the news was not good. Martinez was told his double wide trailer was on fire.

"When I got back home everything was engulfed in flames," said Martinez. "Some of the neighbors say they saw some power lines sparkling. I am waiting for the fire investigation report."

Although Martinez has home insur-

"All I was left with that day was the clothes on my back," said Martinez.

community. I never was the type of person that took handouts, but everything I owned is gone. Even two trucks that I had burned down. One of them was my son's truck." In addition to losing his home, two days before Christmas his well in Sheridan had dried out. Martinez was in the process of digging a new one.

"I am grateful that no one got hurt," said Martinez.

Sheridan is located about five miles south

LCC Board of Trustees meeting informational, productive

Saturday's Luna Community College Board of Trustees special meeting was informational and productive. The main emphasis of the meeting was a thorough exercise of the overall budget, adult basic education and general education diploma programs as well as the vocational programs. There was plenty of interaction between board members and LCC Vice-President of Finance Donna Flores-Medina, LCC President Dr. Pete Campos, LCC ABE/GED Director Geraldine Romero and LCC Vocational Director Gary Martinez.

"We are hoping that this meeting opened the doors to communication with budget issues; it was very educational and eliminated any misconceptions of our budget," said LCC Board Chairman Abelino Montoya Jr. "Today's meeting was great. It gave staff the opportunity to let us know what they are thinking. Looking at the budget openly is part of the transparency of this college."

Environmental and chemistry class field trip

Angie (Fereshteh) Manafy's environmental and chemistry classes visited the Wildlife Refuge last Monday. Students explored and identified aspects and features of the environment that illustrate key concepts discussed in the science classes. Included were: key concepts in biogeochemical cycles, food web, exponential growth and how science is a way of understanding the natural world.

“As far as rebuilding, I need to see where I stand with the insurance,” said Martinez. “I know I do want to stay in the area and continue my education at Luna and see where it leads me.”

An account has been open at the State Employees Credit Union where cash donations are being accepted. The account number is 3001955330.

“Having lost everything, I had to go to Wal-Mart that night and buy the basic things like a toothbrush to start over again,” says Martinez.

Although there hasn't been that much laughter in the Martinez household recently, his mom did make him smile.

“She told me ‘Hijo, (son) look at this in a positive way, you get to have an entire new wardrobe,” says Martinez.

Martinez, who is the store manager for Franken Tire Center, had owned his home for 17 years.

“I am truly grateful to everyone. My faith in God has carried me through. I pray that no one else has to go through what I have,”—Dave Martinez.

“I have an entirely different respect for fellow citizens because of their generosity and compassion,” says Martinez. “It has changed my views of helping others.”

Martinez intends to volunteer with the Red Cross, an organization that has lent him a hand.

“I am truly grateful to everyone,” says Martinez. “My faith in God has carried me through. I pray that no one else has to go through what I have.”

Martinez, a 1984 Questa High graduate, earned his auto technology certificate from Luna Community in 1984.

Many people in attendance said the meeting was so informational that other departments should have the same opportunity.

"I appreciate the board of trustees giving up a Saturday for an in-depth presentation of the budget process and various other fiscal matters that impact the college," said Flores-Medina.

The 2013-14 fiscal year budget will be up for approval in the next scheduled BOT meeting which will be held on Wednesday.

Romero provided information on program structure, funding issues and the future of GED and
