New student orientation set for Friday, Aug. 2

Luna Community College will have its 2013 New Student Orientation from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 2 at the Nursing Auditorium. The theme at this year's orientation is "Accept the Challenge—Learn Today, Complete Degree and Complete Tomorrow."

"Student orientation is a very important aspect of Luna Community College," said LCC Public Information Coordinator Jesse Gallegos. "New students will get to meet other new students, our faculty, staff and administration. In addition, students and parents can find out more about our academic/vocational programs and resources that are available. Students will also be able to register for the fall semester and perhaps, more importantly, students and parents will get individual questions answered."

Luna Community College students, faculty, staff and community members enjoy an end-of-the-year barbecue held on Thursday. In addition to the good food, students were given advisement and were able to register for the fall semester. For more on the BBQ, see Monday's Luna Light.
