LCC's Melissa Serna earns sixth place: Iisha Trujillo 13th at National SkillsUSA

Luna Community College cosmetology student Melissa Serna just missed finishing in the top five at the SkillsUSA National competition in Louisville recently. Fellow student Iisha Trujillo took 13th in her category.

The two students had taken first place in their respective categories at the state SkillsUSA competition in April. Serna competed in nail care while Trujillo competed in cosmetology. Katrina Gonzales, a recent Luna Community College cosmetology graduate, was Serna's nail care model.

"All our students did very well," said Luna Community College Cosmetology Instructor Clarice Bonney who also serves as a SkillsUSA advisor. "They competed at a very high level. They were competing against a lot of students that had already graduated. I couldn't be prouder of our students."

Luna Community College student Lawrence Martinez (second from the left) passed his American Welding Society (AWS) certification on Wednesday, July 22. Mike Thomas, (far left) from Rocky Mountain Testing, was on campus to administer the test. AWS is a multifaceted, nonprofit organization with a goal to advance the science, technology and application of welding and related joining disciplines. Martinez currently is working with a large contractor in Questa, N.M., and earned his certification to advance his opportunities within the welding industry. Also pictured are LCC's Vocational Department Director Gary Martinez and LCC Welding Instructor Donnie Adkins. Gary Martinez says that in today's industry certifications are a big part of advancing a career. Martinez says that one of the biggest reasons students enroll in vocational programs is because of the licensing and certifications that the college offers. Luna CC to offer nationally recognized heavy equipment certifications

Luna Community College will soon begin offering nationally recognized heavy equipment certifications. Students will be able to get certified in scrapers, bulldozers, all-terrain forklifts, skid loaders, backhoes, wheel loaders, excavators, motor graders and compaction equipment, according to Luna Community College Building Trades Instructor Joseph Montoya.

“It’s something that’s needed,” said Montoya. “The heavy equipment operation programs is comprehensive, industry developed and offers national recognized certification. It’s getting to the point where employees need certification.”

The classes will be two-credits each. Montoya said that the first class will be on backhoe operations. Montoya intends to have this week-long class beginning soon.

Among some of the benefits of the classes, students will be taught heavy equipment operations with a variety of classroom instruction. Students successfully completing the National Center for Construction Education and Research (NCCER) specialized training will receive an NCCER certification card and will be put on the national registry. This NCCER database is a list of names of individuals who have successfully completed any NCCER standardized construction and safety training by an accredited organization.

Among Montoya’s qualifications, he is an NCCER master trainer, an NCCER craft instructor in nine pieces of heavy equipment, an NCCER construction site safety master trainer and an OSHA outreach trainer.

The total contact hours for each piece of the heavy equipment certification will vary. The heavy equipment certifications are designed to give students the fundamental skills and knowledge needed to operate heavy equipment. In addition, students will attend a 10-hour Occupational Safety and Health Administration training course by an authorized OSHA outreach trainer.

Students may qualify for free tuition on the courses through the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act if eligibility requirements are met.

For more information on Luna Community College heavy equipment certifications, please contact Montoya at 505/795-0930.

Students excelling at Mora Site

By Wanda Martinez
Mora Site Director

The Mora Site begins yet another semester on a positive note. We raised the bar this past spring by graduating eight high school students with a general education certificate and one receiving her general studies AA! They are: April Gallegos, Genoveva Hurtado (magna cum laude, Phi Theta Kappa), Andres Martinez (cum laude, Phi Theta Kappa), Julianne Mendoza (cum laude, Phi Theta Kappa) (AA), Melissa Montoya, Onnica Pino (summa cum laude, Phi Theta Kappa), Gilbert Ramirez (cum laude) and Alexis Trujillo (magna cum laude, Phi Theta Kappa).

Each of them are registered for the fall semester at the university of their choice as sophomores. Two of these students, Andres

Andres Martinez and Gilbert Ramirez

Martinez and Gilbert Ramirez, have joined the National Guard and will be beginning their educational journey in the spring semester as they are currently in Georgia and Missouri, respectively.

This is the first time in Mora High School history that so many students have received their certificates and the first time any student received an associate's degree prior to their high school graduation! Congratulations!! This is quite an accomplishment and it just proves the impact and effectiveness Luna Community College has in a rural community. The possibilities are indeed endless and we will continue to strive to do all we can for our community and all its educational needs.
